The Study Abroad office offers a limited number of need-based grants to study abroad program participants. Awards range from $250 to $4,000 (semester)/$250 to $2,000 (summer/winter session) depending on the session and available funding. To be eligible for a need-based grant, a student must 1) be an undergraduate, enrolled in a degree program at the University of Iowa, 2) be in good academic standing, 3) receive some form of financial aid as indicated on the UI Financial Aid Award Summary, and 4) earn credit that counts toward degree requirements.

Applications must be submitted via email (teresa-kout@uiowa.edu) at the Study Abroad office by the deadline posted on the website: <http://international.uiowa.edu/study-abroad/funding>.

You must have submitted the current FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) to the University of Iowa and have a financial aid award summary available on your MyUI student portal. Grants are determined by comparing the financial need/aid figures and are awarded on the basis of relative need.

Note: Applicants who are current Federal Pell Grant recipients are also encouraged to apply for a Benjamin A. Gilman International Scholarship. More information and an application are available at <http://gilmanscholarship.org>.
