“PRIVILEGE, SELF-RESPECT AND INTEGRITY”

MONDAY, APRIL 3 | 3:30 - 5:00 PM | 304 EPB (GERBER LOUNGE)

This talk explores the possibility of maintaining self-respect and integrity when one is in a position of privilege.

Samantha Vice is Professor in the Philosophy Department at the University of the Witwatersrand (Johannesburg) and also affiliated with the Wits Centre for Ethics. She works in ethics and social philosophy, and her recent work has been exploring the moral experience and situation of the racially privileged.

This event is sponsored by the African Studies Program, International Programs, Department of English, Department of Philosophy, and the Obermann Center for Advanced Studies.

For more information, please visit: international.uiowa.edu/academic/african-studies

Individuals with disabilities are encouraged to attend all University of Iowa-sponsored events. If you are a person with a disability who requires an accommodation in order to participate in this program, please contact Marie Kruger in advance at marie-kruger@uiowa.edu or 319-335-3121.