BILINGUAL READINGS
WITH ARAI TAKAKO
CORTADO COFFEE, 26 S. CLINTON ST.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 7 P.M.
Love and Destruction

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 7 P.M.
Destruction and Love

Please join the UI Japanese Program for two evenings of bilingual readings! Arai Takako, the internationally celebrated poet and 2019 International Writing Program participant, will read selections from her poetry in the original Japanese, and members of the Workshop in Japanese Literary Translation will read their English translations. Reading sequence to be determined by the audience!

Arai Takako is the author of several books of poetry, including the newly released English collection Factory Girls. She is producer of the new documentary film Songs Still Sung, about the 2011 earthquake and tsunami in northern Japan.

This event is co-sponsored by the International Writing Program, International Programs, the Center for Asian and Pacific Studies, and the Division of World Languages, Literatures, and Cultures at the University of Iowa.
