1. What do I need to take this course through distance learning?
   Computer, high-speed internet access, headphones, camera and microphone.

2. How does this distance learning class work?
   The class will open for distance learning users only. When you fill in the registration form, please write “distance learning” by the course title you check. Participants of this class will have “virtual classroom” installed on their computer in order to have access to the course. During class, your instructor will see and hear all distance learners on the computer screen.

3. How do I register?
   Please register with the Confucius Institute first. Download the registration form from our website (http://international.uiowa.edu/confucius/enrollment) and mail the registration fee to us (send check payable to "Confucius Institute"). We complete your registration with the division of Continued Education. Their IT technologists will then contact you to set up your computer for the class. Before the first class begins, we will log into the system to make sure your software is working properly.

4. What will I learn in this class?
   We are going to adopt “Contemporary Chinese 1” as our textbook. In Level 1, we will finish learning the pronunciation system, some basic radicals and move on to basic expressions and dialogs on topics related to daily life. In Level 2 we will continue with the following chapters in the textbook with more grammar patterns and syntax structures introduced in class. Pronunciation will be reviewed; new radicals will be introduced.
