GLOBAL HEALTH STUDIES CONFERENCE:

ENERGY AND HEALTH ON A SICK PLANET

OCTOBER 5-7, 2012

Keynote Speakers:

TRACY BACH is a professor at Vermont Law School. She has a long history of working for environmental health and justice in the U.S., Asia, and Africa, and she was a Fulbright Scholar recently in Dakar, Senegal.

ARNE JUNGINHOHN has extensive experience with environmental, energy and climate legislation on both sides of the Atlantic. As director of the Environment and Global Dialogue Program of the Heinrich Boell Foundation, he is widely recognized for his work identifying solutions toward a low carbon economy.

Iowa Memorial Union and Pappajohn Business Building

Visit http://international.uiowa.edu/global-health for more information and the full schedule.

There is a growing consensus on the part of the global community that a reevaluation of energy needs and mechanisms to produce energy is imperative. This conference will explore energy challenges, options, and potential remedies through the lens of global health.

Students wishing to receive credit should register for course 152:152 on ISIS.

Deadline: September 10

Community members can register at http://international.uiowa.edu/global-health.

Deadline: October 2

Course fee is $40

This event is sponsored by International Programs, the Global Health Studies Program, and Iowa Physicians for Social Responsibility. Individuals with disabilities are encouraged to attend all University of Iowa-sponsored events. If you are a person with a disability who requires an accommodation in order to participate in this program, please contact Maureen McCue in advance at 319-828-4789.