Pahk Induk (1896-1980) is one of the most famous and controversial women intellectuals in modern Korea. Using Pahk’s life story as a case in point, Dr. Choi will discuss the critical role of the Protestant mission in the gender history of Korea within the broader context of Korean nationalism, Japanese colonialism, and transnationalism in the early twentieth century. See https://clas.uiowa.edu/religion/ for more details.