Learn how the Iowa caucuses work, their role in the process of electing the next president of the United States, and how domestic and international students can participate.

FEATURED SPEAKER

Professor David P. Redlawsk

David P. Redlawsk is a visiting professor at the University of Iowa, where he is teaching a class on the Iowa caucuses. He is the co-author of the book Why Iowa? How Caucuses and Sequential Elections Improve the Presidential Nominating System (University of Chicago Press, 2010).

Individuals with disabilities are encouraged to attend all University of Iowa-sponsored events. If you are a person with a disability who requires an accommodation in order to participate in this program, please contact Rudia W. Kihura in advance at rudiawairimu-kihura@uiowa.edu or 319-335-3841.