

University of Iowa King Sejong Institute presents
The Sejong Talks

Korea's Position in the Power-Hierarchy of Nations:

Recent Historical Trends and Future Prospects

Jae-on Kim, Ph.D.
Professor Emeritus
Department of Sociology

The lecture draws on a new method of assessing core national power and reveals the weakness of conventional wisdom. Among other things, it shows that South Korea is at the moment one of the top six or seven strongest nations in the world; that the United States has been the strongest nation for much of the last century and ultimately China may over take the U.S. as the strongest nation in the world, but both the degree of the pre-eminence of the U.S. and the emergence of China as a new power are exaggerated.

- This event is free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be provided.

Date: October 23rd (Friday), 2015

Time and Place: 5:30 - 6:30 p.m., 1117 UCC