Dr. Coelho, a postdoctoral fellow in Cultural Heritage and Preservation Studies at Rutgers University, will speak about his research and archaeological excavations on the Spanish/Portuguese border and what they reveal about resistance during and after the Spanish Civil War (1936-1939).

This lecture is co-sponsored by an International Programs Special Projects Grant, the Departments of Anthropology and Spanish and Portuguese, and the European Studies Group.

Individuals with disabilities are encouraged to attend all University of Iowa-sponsored events. If you are a person with a disability who requires a reasonable accommodation in order to participate in this program, please contact Katina Lillios in advance at katina-lillios@uiowa.edu or 319-335-3023.
